Beyond the Morbidity and Mortality Conference: Analysis of Surgical Errors and Complications in Contemporary Practice

The analysis of surgical errors and complications, ranging from near misses to those causing death, can provide critical learning opportunities to improve outcomes. This interactive, online, case-based program developed by the ACS Division of Education, discusses the analysis of errors and complications, and presents a straightforward method of critical evaluation that can be used by individual surgeons or surgical teams.

Join William C. Mackey, MD, FACS., and Michael Tarnoff, MD, FAC., from Tufts Medical Center, Boston, MA, as they discuss processes and techniques that have been used successfully and can be readily applied in many environments. Following completion of this one-hour course, participants will be able to: 1) explain the importance of the critical appraisal of surgical errors and complications, 2) describe the role of a culture of openness in which all members of the surgical team are encouraged to report all adverse events and near misses, 3) discuss the importance of analyzing near misses even if they result in no harm to the patient, 4) describe a method for systematically analyzing surgical adverse events, identifying opportunities for improvement, and implementing and tracking changes in practice, and 5) apply this method to sample cases. To earn credit, participants must view the lecture, complete three interactive cases, and subsequently complete a short posttest and evaluation form. The program offers 1.0 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit.TM

Communicating with Patients about Surgical Errors and Adverse Outcomes

NEW!

This educational DVD (Windows and MAC platform) addresses the essential principles of communicating with patients about surgical errors and adverse outcomes. Research has revealed that physicians and patients have very different perspectives regarding these issues, and this DVD presents viewpoints of each group. Critical concepts for understanding and approaching conversations regarding surgical errors and adverse outcomes are presented by Drs. Thomas Gallagher and John Banja during surgical grand rounds at Emory University Hospital, Atlanta, GA. In addition, three vignettes involving a retained sponge, an operating room burn, and a common bile duct injury depict surgeons interacting with patients in these scenarios using a variety of strategies and approaches. Discussion points for each vignette are provided.

The content does not provide legal advice, nor does it establish a standard of care for disclosing surgical error. Practicing surgeons may use this DVD to earn continuing medical education credit (2.5 CME hours). It is also a valuable tool for teaching and group discussion purposes with surgeons, residents, or medical students. This project was supported by Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality Grant number U 18 HS12021. Developed by ACS Division of Education. 2007.

ACS Surgery Resident Objective Structured Clinical Examination (OSCE)

The ACS Surgery Resident Objective Structured Clinical Examination was developed as a tool for assessing the entry level knowledge and skills of PGY-1 surgery residents in delivering safe care to surgery patients with critical and life-threatening conditions. The OSCE is intended as a formative evaluation tool for providing residents with constructive feedback regarding their management of critical situations that they are likely to encounter, particularly when they are on call. Ten scenarios have been developed that unfold during a 10-minute clinical encounter and a five-minute written post-encounter. Cases include the traditional use of standardized patients (SPs), as well as telephone conversations and encounters with standardized nurses and medical students. The OSCE is designed for use by any residency program, regardless of previous experience with OSCEs or availability of a SP training program or facility. This program includes two parts: a CD-ROM that provides all the written materials and instructions needed to prepare for and administer the OSCE, and a DVD that provides a gold standard performance of each clinical scenario being portrayed by a SP and resident. This project was supported by grant number U18 HS12021 from the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality.

Successfully Navigating the First Year of Surgical Residency: Essentials for Medical Students and PGY-1 Residents

This publication lists the critical cognitive, clinical, and technical skills needed to help new surgical residents prepare for their first year of residency training. It addresses the essential areas of knowledge and skills that surgical residents should possess at the beginning and completion of the first year of residency education. The document lays the groundwork for education and training in all surgical specialties and includes contemporary topics in surgery within the context of the six core competencies identified by the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education (medical knowledge, patient care, professionalism, interpersonal and communication skills, practice-based learning and improvement, and systems-based practice). In addition, heavy emphasis has been placed on patient safety issues. Developed by the ACS Division of Education.

The "Essentials" publication, which replaces Prerequisites for Graduate Surgical Education: A Guide for Medical Students and PGY-1 Surgical Residents, should be helpful to medical students interested in surgery, surgical residents, and residency program directors. The spiral-bound publication fits in a lab coat pocket for easy reference, and also is available as a downloadable file. This project was supported by the Agency for Health Care Research and Quality Grant U18 HS12021 and is free of charge.

Surgical Education and Self-Assessment Program (SESAP)

09SP-0001

NEW!

SESAP Sampler

In response to the growing demand for a convenient format to assess surgical knowledge on a regular basis, the American College of Surgeons Division of Education has developed the SESAP Sampler. Continuing the SESAP standards for excellence, SESAP Sampler consists of content that has been developed with the same rigorous, multi-step, peer-review process used for SESAP 13, and is being published for the first time.

The SESAP Sampler provides the flexibility of a periodic, monthly review and the optimum convenience of an online format. The Web-based self-assessment resource is offered as an annual subscription consisting of 12 monthly online modules. Each module presents five new, previously unpublished questions along with discussions and cited references for each question on topics that parallel the content outline for the general surgery recertification examination. Upcoming topics include breast, abdomen, vascular, endocrine, thoracic, and alimentary tract.

SESAP Sampler is designed to enhance surgical decision-making skills and patient care through continuous, periodic self-assessment. An annual subscription provides the opportunity to earn a maximum of 6 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™ that may be helpful in meeting Part II of the Maintenance of Certification requirements of the American Board of Surgery.

Surgical Education and Self-Assessment Program (SESAP)

SESAP 13

The Surgical Education and Self-Assessment Program (SESAP) has been a premier educational resource for practicing surgeons and surgical residents for over 35 years. Each program consists of 650 Multiple Choice Items (MCIs) with discussions and references to the current literature in 17 content areas of interest to general surgeons. Program materials are furnished in both print and CD-ROM formats.

In the all-new 13th edition, the 17 content domains mirror the American Board of Surgery curriculum for Maintenance of Certification (MOC) in Surgery. SESAP 13 offers participants a unique opportunity to conveniently assess and enhance their cognitive knowledge. Strengths and weaknesses in cognitive knowledge relating to the various content domains can be readily ascertained by the participant and the critiques and references used in the learning process. The content of SESAP 13 addresses several aspects of the core competencies of medical knowledge and patient care, and also some of the other core competencies, as defined by the American Board of Medical Specialties and the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education. The program should help surgeons in using this information to care for their patients and to prepare for certification and MOC examinations. SESAP 13 also offers the opportunity to earn up to 60 Category 1 credits.

You may order SESAP online through a secured server on the ACS Web site (<http://www.facs.org/commerce/index.html>); or you may place your order by phone, or by mail. You must use a credit card (Visa, Mastercard, or American Express) if you order online or by phone.
