“ This report is prepared to let you know that you’re ensuring the future of your profession in ways you may not even realize. ”

— Mary H. McGrath, MD, FACS
Chair, ACS Foundation
On behalf of the ACS Foundation, thank you.

This annual report celebrates those who choose to support the American College of Surgeons (ACS) in a tangible way; those who believe that the ACS is a keeper of ideals and principles and the most effective voice for surgery. This report is prepared to let you know that you’re ensuring the future of your profession in ways you may not even realize.

Starting two years ago, the Foundation decided to think about more than just asking for gifts for ongoing programs at the College. Our new mission isn’t merely to raise funds but rather to promote the innovation and future planning within the College. In order to do this, the Foundation has set out to find initiatives, new proposals, and forward-looking programs that are as yet under or unfunded.

In collaboration with each of the College divisions, we have developed formal descriptions for 19 projects that could be undertaken if they had additional financial support. The needs include initiatives in cancer, history, education, global surgery, trauma, and quality. The budgetary requirements to launch these dream projects range from small to considerably large amounts. If you would like to learn more about these programs, please visit facs.org/acsfoundation or contact the Foundation office.

Inside these pages we highlight some of the 35 domestic and 27 international 2018 scholarships and fellowships recipients. We hope next year to be able to highlight the changes your donations have made in the 19 programs mentioned above. We are committed to educating our donors on the changes they can and do make through fund giving to the College.

Effective giving should be more than writing a check to gain a sense of service. It should be a thoughtful way to support approaches that will bring about beneficial change. Now is the time to invest in creating the future we want.

Thank you again for supporting the American College of Surgeons and for being part of this exceptional organization.

Mary H. McGrath, MD, FACS
Chair, ACS Foundation
Since its founding in 1913, the American College of Surgeons has recognized the importance of philanthropy in supporting the College’s mission of ensuring the provision of the best possible surgical care for patients. Over the ensuing years, Fellows have generously responded with contributions to support the myriad of programs, scholarships, and fellowships that benefit our Fellows, as well as the communities they serve.

I am pleased to report that Foundation philanthropic support is growing internationally, demonstrating the need for and recognition of the impact the College’s programs and services have beyond the shores of North America. Your gifts provide the funds to permit Fellows from Asia, South America, Europe, and Africa to travel to Clinical Congress, visit top medical institutions, and then return home to share best practices with their surgical peers.

The impact of your continuing generous support of the work of the College and of the Foundation cannot be overstated. Your gifts will continue to impact the College’s mission for years to come, ensuring the advancement of patient care and helping to save lives throughout the world.

Thank you for your commitment to financially support the work of the College and, in doing so, uniting as Fellows for the benefit of the patient.

In 1968, the American College of Surgeons awarded its first international scholarship. Enrique C. Muyschondt, MD, FACS, from El Salvador was the first recipient of the International Guest Scholarship. He received $2,000 to facilitate his travel from San Salvador to the 54th Annual Clinical Congress in Atlantic City, NJ. Since then, 373 international scholarships have been awarded to Fellows from 80 countries. These awards offer surgeons around the world the opportunity to travel to Clinical Congress to engage with their fellow surgeons in the sharing of best practices and new ideas. In their own words, two recipients of international travel awards express their thoughts and gratitude.

“The best part is that I am being an example for young doctors that it is rewarding to live in remote places, not only in the big cities but also where they need us more.”
—Fernanda Lage Lima Dantas, MD, FACS, Brazil
I would like to share with you and with ACS the beautiful repercussion of my ACS Community Surgeon Travel Award 2018 here in Brazil. Last Saturday, in the official Internet media of the state of Acre, they showed a report about the award, with narratives from the mothers of my little patients.

It took a national dimension, and I am receiving congratulations from people from all over the country. The best part is that I am being an example for young doctors that it is rewarding to live in remote places, not only in the big cities but also where they need us more. That even in hard conditions we can do a good work and be recognized for that; that the efforts are worth it.

In Brazil we are experiencing a hard economic, political, and even social crisis. My story is motivating many young people and giving hope to some older ones. We were, as a nation, needing news like that.

I would like to thank the ACS for this opportunity to inspire others to follow my steps, to get out of your comfort zone, and follow your dreams. There are reports in the digital media from the public universities also, and all my colleagues from the Acre Federal University are proud of the award. I am sure that Patricia Numann, MD, FACS, will be so proud to know that I am representing the woman surgeon. There are a lot of commentaries about a woman receiving an award in a “man’s field” and that we have the courage to face the same challenges that they do and do brilliant work.

So many women in Brazil are feeling awarded too. I think that it is important for the Organizing Committee to realize how important these awards are for our lives and for the lives of so many people. This can become a reality. This can inspire a generation! Many of my students felt renewed to keep trekking, the way pioneers do, to work in remote places.

Thank you so much for giving me this experience!

About a year ago, I received an e-mail from the American College of Surgeons informing me that I was the recipient of a Community Surgeons Travel Award. This meant that I would have the privilege of attending the Clinical Congress in San Diego, CA. This is indeed a privilege and a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for me as a general and colorectal surgeon practicing in Bacolod City, Negros Occidental, Philippines. I am very thankful for the generosity of the Duremdes family for providing this scholarship for Filipino community surgeons.

October 23, 2017, came, and I arrived jet lagged but proud to be in my Barong Tagalog. I sat at the back of the stage as we were honored and tried not to slap my own face to be sure that I was not in a dream. It must have been divine intervention that the ACS President, Barbara Lee Bass, MD, FACS, is a woman who talked about the joy and privilege of being a surgeon. The Martin Memorial Lecturer, David R. Williams, MD, FRCS, talked about how he lost his astronaut license to cancer and still went back for another mission on the moon.

I attended scientific sessions on general surgery but mostly about colon and rectal surgery. Overall, what I learned from most was seeing the surgical dedication—discovering the latest technologies, pursuing research, and striving for excellence to give the best treatment possible to all kinds of diseases for the benefit of mankind. I now believe that research is very important because without it we will have no new treatments or technologies. I intend to do more research and encourage my residents to do research in our hospital.

This travel privilege has not only given me the knowledge that I will use as a surgeon, but it has also helped my personal journey of recovery, acceptance, and inspiration as I battle breast cancer. Yes, I was diagnosed with breast cancer about a week after I had arranged my flight, hotel, and schedules for my travel. I immediately underwent surgery but told my doctors that it would not stop me from going to Clinical Congress. I was glad I went, because hearing Dr. Williams in the opening ceremony talk of his battle with the big “C” gave me strength to go through the treatments. I may have to step back a little to undergo treatments, but they will not stop me from doing what I love most: helping my patients through surgery.

This journey to Clinical Congress 2017 was not only a highlight of my career as a surgeon—gaining knowledge, hearing and seeing the lecturers of books that I read. It also helped me personally to fight and defeat the big “C,” continue my practice as a surgeon, and become an inspiration not only to my colleagues but also to my patients.

“What I learned from most was seeing the surgical dedication—discovering the latest technologies, pursuing research, and striving for excellence to give the best treatment possible to all kinds of diseases for the benefit of mankind.”

—Vimelyn Pahilanga, MD, FACS, Philippines
2018–2020 FACULTY RESEARCH FELLOWS

Four Faculty Research Fellowships have been awarded by the College for 2018–2020. The fellowships are offered to encourage young academic surgeon-scientists to establish their own laboratories and carry awards of $40,000 for each of two years, beginning July 1, 2018. These fellowships are supported by the Scholarship Endowment Fund of the College.

The Scholarship Endowment Fund was established to provide income to fund scholarships and fellowships awarded by the Board of Regents. Direct contributions to support the Scholarship Endowment Fund are welcome. Fellows wishing to make tax-deductible gifts to fund these vital programs are encouraged to contact the ACS Foundation at 312-202-5338.
DISTINGUISHED PHILANTHROPISTS

The ACS Foundation proudly acknowledges the philanthropy of individuals who have distinguished themselves through their extraordinary investment in the mission of the American College of Surgeons. We are pleased to honor them with the Distinguished Philanthropist Award.
