Advocacy at Home Toolkit
Program Toolkit: Tools and Resources to Become a More Effective Surgeon Advocate at Home
Welcome

Thank you for engaging in the American College of Surgeons (ACS) Division of Advocacy and Health Policy’s (DAHP) advocacy efforts at home! By advocating at home, you will continue to help raise the profile of issues important to surgeons and surgical patients and establish yourself as a trusted resource to your members of Congress and their staff. Your continued involvement demonstrates your commitment to surgeon advocacy, particularly developing and maintaining relationships with important elected officials.

This toolkit will provide you with all the necessary resources you need to prepare for and execute a successful meeting and become a more effective advocate at home. Staff encourages you to review the following information prior to your meeting or teleconference:

- Surgeon Advocacy
- Meeting Protocol
- Meeting Mishaps
- Social Media Guide
- Supplemental Resources
- Meeting Evaluation Form

For questions, or to learn more about ACS advocacy priorities or any of the enclosed resources, please contact DAHP staff at ahp@facs.org.
Surgeon Advocacy

ACS’ goals include improving surgical patient care and safeguarding standards of that care within an ethical practice environment for our profession. Even in the current challenging political climate, the College must continue to propose meaningful health policy proposals for Congress and state legislatures to consider. It is up to surgeon advocates to become experts within this space and advocate for meaningful, practical policies at the federal and state levels.

As a surgeon, your first-hand expertise and training provide a realistic perspective on health policy issues. Establishing yourself as a surgeon advocate is crucial to making your voice heard. More specifically, regularly engaging with members of Congress and their staff, and serving as a trusted resource on issues of importance to surgeons and the surgical patient, is essential. As a result, many lawmakers, particularly your elected officials, will look to you for guidance on complex issues.

Meeting Protocol

To schedule a meeting with your legislators, visit the SurgeonsVoice online Action Center. Additionally, utilizing the following tips can help lay the groundwork for developing a mutually beneficial relationship between you and your elected officials.

Prior to Your Meeting

Be Flexible. Members of Congress maintain extremely busy schedules, especially at home/in-district. Meeting details, times, and durations will vary.

Come Prepared. Supply relevant supplemental materials and information.

Do your Research. Every office is different, so be sure to learn more about your member of Congress and their staff prior to your meeting. And, do not underestimate the influence of health policy staff. Serving as key advisors, staff frequently conduct research and prepare voting recommendations for the member.

Learn the Issues. Similar to getting to know your legislator, understanding ACS advocacy priorities is critical. Reference https://www.facs.org/advocacy/federal and contact DAHP staff with any questions.

Browsing ACS publications like the Bulletin and Advocacy Brief in addition to visiting SurgeonsVoice online to learn more about advocacy and health policy issues that have the potential to affect surgeons and surgical patients across the country, may help provide additional context.

“Friend” or “Follow” Your Elected Officials. In today’s social media-driven domain, politicians rely on Facebook, Twitter, and other vehicles as easy, effective platforms to get their message across to constituents and vice versa. Because social media is set up to engage an audience, you too can educate, praise, or respond to your elected official.
During Your Meeting

Make the Ask. Being attentive and respectful while confidently reinforcing your ask goes a long way in ensuring your “ask” becomes a priority.

Acknowledge If/When You Need to Obtain More Information. If you are asked a question that you do not know the answer to, inform the member and/or staff that you will get back to them with a response. Please utilize DAHP staff as a resource to assist with follow-up to an office.

Share Your Story. Be sure to share your personal story, if applicable.

Say Thank You. When your meeting concludes, thank your contact for his or her time, offer yourself as a trusted resource, and provide him or her with your contact information.

After Your Meeting

Follow-Up and Confirm. Sample thank you correspondence is included for your information.

Provide Feedback. Your feedback and recommendations are important to us. Please use the meeting evaluation form as an opportunity to critique your meeting.

Meeting Mishaps

Avoiding common meeting “don’ts” will help ensure a pleasant, productive meeting.

Don’t…

Be Tardy. Congressional offices are very small, busy entities so arriving on time (no more than five minutes prior to your meeting or call time) is encouraged.

Become Emotional. Be proactive and anticipate the likelihood of earlier meetings running late, potential for the member or staff to disagree with your position, and more. If you are prepared for the chaos that is Congress, you will remain the calm, cool, collected expert in the room.

Be Partisan. You are entitled to your personal political views, but when representing the ACS, you are serving as surgery’s bipartisan voice at the federal level.

Discuss Political Contributions. It is illegal to disclose political activity or campaign/PAC contributions when discussing policy matters, especially inside a government office or building. Federal Election Commission (FEC) regulations prohibit tying a specific ask to a political contribution. Attending a local fundraiser or event is a great opportunity to present a check, thank a member of Congress for his or her leadership, and network with other health policy professionals.
Social Media Sharing Guide

To elevate your engagement, consider using #advocateathome to share messages with your elected officials on Twitter and Facebook. Consider the following sample tweets, examples, and instructions when contacting your member of Congress via social media.

Thank you in advance for doing your part to participate and work to help educate members of Congress about important issues facing surgeons and patients at home.

Although surgeon advocate local meeting assessments have been extremely positive, stating that duration, substance, and policymaker interaction was exceptional, working to ensure advocating at home is easy for all ACS members remains a DAHP priority. Here are some past testimonials from engaged surgeon advocates:

“Although the Annual Advocacy meeting is important for educating all surgeons, in-district meetings should receive more emphasis as members receive more face time with the legislators, which offers a better opportunity to establish important relationships.” —Charles Coren, MD, FACS

“I had a 45-minute meeting with Rep. Don Young and his chief of staff. It was a great two-way conversation where Rep. Young offered feedback regarding several ACS initiatives.” —Danny Robinette, MD, FACS

“I met with Rep. Bobby Scott in his Newport News office for about 40 minutes. He had two legislative staff sit in. It was a very positive meeting.” —Leonard Weireter, MD, FACS

Michael Spedick, MD, FACS, FAAP, FAAO, and Rep. Tom MacArthur (R-NJ-3)
