EXCELSIOR SURGICAL SOCIETY

In 1945, battle-hardened surgeons met at the Excelsior Hotel in Rome, Italy, in a spirit of camaraderie forged on the front lines of the Mediterranean Theater of Operations. Seventy years later, the Military Health System Strategic Partnership of the American College of Surgeon (MHSSPACS) reestablished the Excelsior Surgical Society for all Army, Navy, and Air Force surgeons—past, present, and future.

The Excelsior Surgical Society seeks to improve surgical education, optimize systems-based practice, and foster research in the Military Health System. It also serves as a specialty society for military surgeons of all services to exchange surgical knowledge and to optimize the wartime and peacetime care of military personnel.
