The President, 1972-73 American College of Surgeons

In the rich professional life of Bill Longmire, Professor of Surgery and Chairman of the Department of UCLA's School of Medicine, six events stand out as having had a decisive influence on his career: his successful gamble of seeking admission as a medical student from no other than Johns Hopkins University's medical school; his marriage to Jane Jarvis Cornelius of Baltimore; his experience as a general surgical practitioner in a small southwestern community; his association with Alfred Blalock during a period when Blalock developed one of the important early phases of cardiac surgery; his selection as one of the five founding fathers of the school he now serves; and the opportunity to contribute to the advancement of surgery in a number of fields.

William Polk Longmire, Jr., was born in 1913 in Sapulpa, Oklahoma, a small community where his father practiced general surgery and where his maternal grandfather, when it was still a settlement in Indian territory, had once served simultaneously as Mayor, US Marshall, and US Postmaster. After graduation from the local high school, he enrolled in a premedical course at the University of Oklahoma, defraying the major share of his expenses during these depression years with the income from a lucrative laundry service he had organized in the basement of his fraternity house.

Dr. Longmire received his MD degree from Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in 1938, completing both his internship and residency at Johns Hopkins Hospital. During this period he served as the Harvey Cushing Fellow in Experimental Surgery and as the Halsted Fellow in Surgical Pathology. Appointments as assistant and then associate professor at the School of Medicine followed.

Shortly after he had begun his surgical residency, his father became ill and he returned for two years to Sapulpa where he maintained his father's practice until the latter had recovered.

On returning to Johns Hopkins, Dr. Longmire continued his surgical residency under the direction of Alfred Blalock, who profoundly influenced the course of his career. Dr. Longmire still considers it as a high point in his professional life when he was chosen to assist Dr. Blalock in the first of the so-called blue baby operations for correction of the tetralogy of Fallot.

In 1948 Dr. Longmire left Baltimore to join four other physicians in founding the medical school at the University of California in Los Angeles. While building this school into one of the leading learning centers in surgery, he also contributed importantly to the graduate education of surgeons in this country, serving over the years as a member of the American Board of Surgery and as its chairman; as a member of the Conference Committee on Graduate Education in Surgery and as its chairman; as a member of the Council on Medical Education of the AMA, and as chairman of the Scientific Board of the California Medical Association.

Dr. Longmire's contributions to the advancement of surgery have been numerous. He was one of the first to prove that total gastrectomy could be performed with an acceptable mortality rate for patients suffering from carcinoma of the stomach, and he helped develop new methods of alimentary reconstruction for patients whose entire stomach had been removed. He was among those who pioneered the direct surgical approach to coronary artery disease, and organized one of the first surgical research laboratories devoted to the study of tissue transplantation. He also maintained a lifelong interest in surgery of the hepatic and biliary tract, a field to which he has made a number of published contributions.

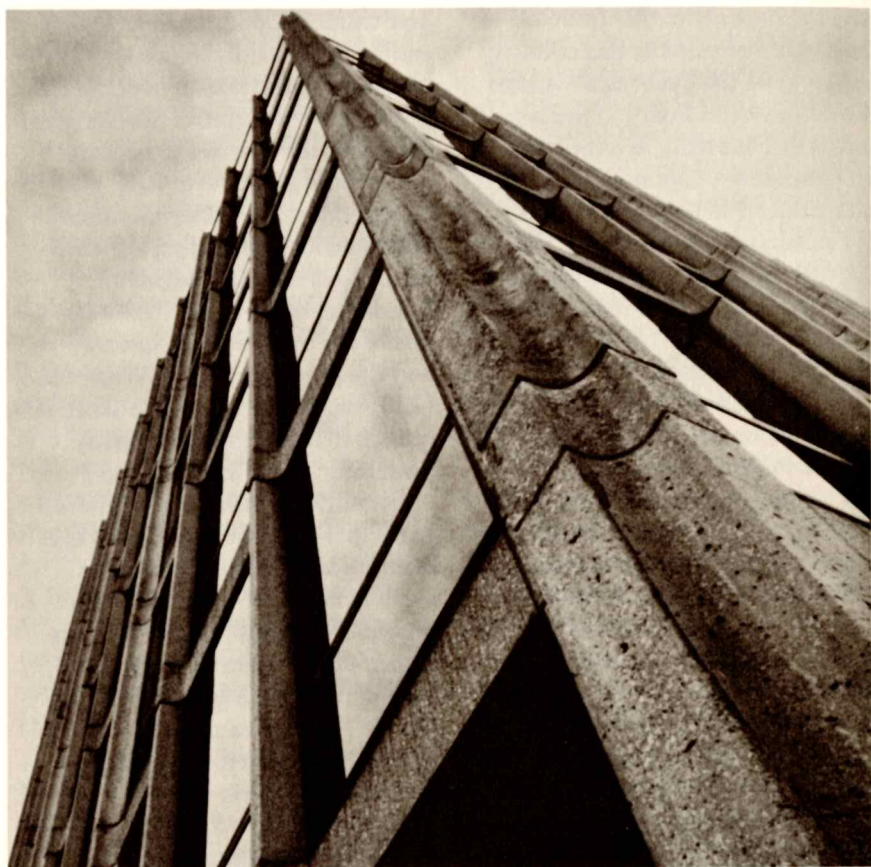

Dr. Longmire's interest in the American College of Surgeons was kindled in 1933 when, at the age of 20 and while still a medical student, he accompanied his father to the 21st Clinical Congress in Chicago and became deeply impressed by his father's enthusiasm over the educational opportunities the Congress offered to the practicing surgeon. He became a Fellow in 1946, and after serving the College in numerous capacities, including the chairmanship of the Committee on Fundamental Surgical Problems and of the Program Committee, and the presidency of the Southern California Chapter, he was elected in 1962 to the Board of Regents, becoming its chairman in 1969.

Concurrent with Dr. Longmire's participation in College affairs has been his interest in the medical services of the US Armed Forces. Since 1954 he has been a National Consultant in General Surgery to the Office of the Surgeon General, US Air Force, and since 1960 Civilian Consultant to the Surgeon General, US Army.

An accomplished golfer, skier, and hiker, Dr. Longmire's spare time activities also include painting in oil, and one of his paintings, "Wineglass and Dispenser," is displayed at College headquarters in Chicago.

Dr. Longmire and Mrs. Longmire live in Pacific Palisades with their three children, William III, who is 21; Gill, who is 16, and Sarah Jane, who is 14.

Recognizing that the American College of Surgeons seeks to exemplify and develop the highest traditions of our profession, I hereby pledge myself, as a condition of Fellowship in the College, to live in strict accordance with all its principles and regulations.

I pledge myself to pursue the practice of surgery with scientific honesty and to place the welfare of my patients above all else; to advance constantly in knowledge; and to render willing help to my colleagues, regard their professional interest, and seek their counsel when in doubt as to my own judgment.

Upon my honor I hereby declare that I will not practice the division of fees, either directly or indirectly.
